

Teanga 21

Clár/Table of Contents

Réamhrá/Introduction	ii
Introduction: corpora, varieties, and the language classroom Fiona Farr and Anne O'Keeffe	1
The Limerick Corpus of Irish English: design, description, and application Fiona Farr, Bróna Murphy, and Anne O'Keeffe	5
This that and the other : multi-word clusters in spoken English as visible patterns of interaction Michael McCarthy and Ronald Carter	30
Will I, won't I? Personal pronouns, grades, and changes over semesters in student academic writing James Binchy	53
Not a study of English! A corpus analysis of discourse features in spoken Burmese San San Hnin Tun	75
Spoken and written ellipsis in (and not in) the experience of adult literacy learners Margaret Childs	93
Semi-specialized corpora of written French as a resource in language teaching and learning Angela Chambers and Victoria Kelly	114
The exchange in family discourse Brian Clancy	134
The intonation of declarative-mood questions in a corpus of Hong Kong English: // ㄣ beef ball // → you like // Winnie Cheng and Martin Warren	151